Allscripts and Wolters Kluwer Health Announce Agreement to Deliver Clinical Information to Physicians

Agreement to Create Custom Content for Electronic Health Record Solutions

PHILADELPHIA, PA and CHICAGO, IL - January 23, 2007 - Allscripts (Nasdaq: MDRX), the leading provider of clinical software, connectivity and information solutions that physicians use to improve healthcare, and Wolters Kluwer Health, a leading global provider of medical and drug information services and content to physicians, today announced a multi-year agreement to deliver Wolters Kluwer Health's industry-leading clinical content to users of Allscripts Electronic Health Record solutions.

Under the agreement, which expands an existing alliance between the two companies, Wolters Kluwer Health will work closely with Allscripts and its clients to develop customized clinical content including customizable documentation templates, order sets, care plans and best practices for use in the TouchWorks™ and HealthMatics® Electronic Health Record solutions and other Allscripts applications. This will enable physicians using Allscripts solutions to document patient care using information appropriate to their area of specialty, including the latest scientific and clinical information about drug therapies, and established best practices to support safe and effective clinical decisions.

"Physicians have come to appreciate and rely upon the electronic delivery of clinical information at the point of care," said Jeff McCaulley, President and Chief Executive Officer of Wolters Kluwer Health. "Our partnership with Allscripts will deliver on the promise of clinical decision support for the benefit of physicians and their patients."

Additionally, the agreement enables Allscripts to offer clients integration between Allscripts applications and Wolters Kluwer Health's products, such as ClinicalResource@Ovid, the most comprehensive and trusted source of scientific and clinical information about drug therapies and evidence-based treatment guidelines to support clinical decisions. ClinicalResource@Ovid is an online tool that provides quick answers to clinical questions. It includes evidence-based diagnosis and treatment guidelines (Clinical Guide); expert-authored disease monographs (5-Minute Consult Database) describing nearly 800 unique medical conditions; browser-based drug information (Facts & Comparisons), access to the National Library of Medicine's online database of peer-reviewed, evidence-based academic journals via MEDLINE; patient handouts covering over 4,000 medical conditions, procedures and treatments and over 6,000 drug products (MedFacts), and online access to the National Guideline Clearinghouse of best practices.

"Our vision at Allscripts has always been that using the Electronic Health Record to simply automate what physicians do was only the first step," said Glen Tullman, Chief Executive Officer of Allscripts. "While that is an important objective, the real transformation will come when we begin providing Just Right, Just In Time Information® - for example, on best practices, on clinical trials relevant to a patient, or on the latest drug therapy - that enables physicians to provide higher quality care more cost-effectively. Our vision is the equivalent of Bloomberg to a stock trader -- they wouldn't trade without it and soon physicians won't see patients without the quality and insight offered by the information Wolters Kluwer Health will provide. This will take Electronic Health Records and Healthcare to a new level and fundamentally change the competitive landscape for organizations that don't have it."

The agreement will initially integrate Wolters Kluwer Health content into TouchWorks Version 11, the latest and most advanced version of the leading ambulatory Electronic Health Record, and will be rapidly extended to other Allscripts product lines.
